

Types of ISP Licenses in India

ISP license is sub divided into 3 categories

Select the category in which you want to apply for the UL ISP License, opt between A, B or C category. These three different categories of VNO ISP license in India are bifurcated by DOT. Country is divided into 24 Service Areas consisting of 20 Telecom Circle Service and 4 Metro Service Areas for Category “B” 322 Secondary Switching Areas for Category “C” UL ISP license is cheapest for class C.

Category A – All India Level – (National Area). This license is for Pan India operations.

Category B – State Level (Telecom Circle /Metro circle) – Class B license is issued for a total of 20 major states or any of the following Metro Cities – Mumbai, New Delhi, Kolkata, Chennai, Bengaluru, Pune, Hyderabad and Ahmedabad. The govt keeps issuing notifications regarding territories declared as telecom circles and metro areas from time to time. To know more about the Telecom Circles and Metro Areas in India, contact us.

Category C – SSA (Secondary Switching Area) – This license is for only a particular secondary switching area. A secondary switching area is a government defined territory which could comprise of several small villages, towns or even districts. A class C license holder will have access to any 1 particular SSA only, unless he applies for multiple authorizations under one unified License.

Depending on the ISP License category you select, you will need to prepare the documents and file the application with DOT. It is important that there be no error in the documents else the process will be put on hold leading to unnecessary delays and hassles.
